That so far as the Comptroller's office is concerned, it is sufficient - if the Bank Counter signs the bill in token of the service being properly conducted, and the party may prepare the bill, get the Counter signature and present - the same to the Comptroller for audit. Such audited bill may be received by the Bank Office desired - and presented for encashment. Thus the whole difficulty is in the ignorance of procedure by the party and when such bills have been prepared by the Bank Counter the bill when audited by the Comptroller being encashable

Similar delays have been brought to my notice in connection with other endowments. For instance in the case of an endowment of Rs 3000 by late Rajakaryam Bakshi Venkatachari for feeding a specified number of Brahmans in Vedantachari Shanti at Nellore, no list has been obtained for these half years and the service is now being stopped and there is a bitter complaint from Venkatachari's relatives at Bangalore. The jurisdiction the Accountant has is thereby upon the depositors the onus of proving every time that things are all right which allows the duty of seeing if things are all right lies with the Govt. 1	(22) As explained in paras 3 & 4 of the Mng Secy noting of 5.9.18, the delay in the drawing of interest on endowments, ~~is~~ that is ~~Complained~~ complained of, is due not to the Rules in force but to ignorance of procedure and apathy on the part of those who are to claim payment of the interest due from govt. —

3	(24) Under para 505 of the M T M, interest on charitable endowments is paid on bills presented by the Comptr, but, the ~~fact that~~ condition of pre audit need not and should not ~~be~~ involve any delay if bills are properly prepared and submitted in time —

As regards (b) the procedure suggested seems complicated and as involving unnecessary work — No amount should be drawn from the Govt Treasury before it is due for payment to the payee placed in Rest or other deposit Accl. pending such payment —

The deposit of such amounts in the Savings Bank is not admissible under the S. B. rules as they are not the S B Accl. shd not be used for the purpose of keeping a current account —

Would it not be desirable to have a uniform arrangement for the drawing of interest on all classes of charitable appeals?

6) For the foregoing reasons it seems that no change in the present rule seems quite necy, and that if strict instructions are issued to subordinate offices to draw to on Cumbrian bills and withhold them on the delay complained of will be avoided.

3) I do not think that the present system is at fault. Prompt action in the several offices is all that is required & it is for the Administrative Branch to secure this by the issue of strict instructions & by enforcing them.

7) If it is considered necy the auditors might be authorised to withhold on Cumbrian bills for interest and send them up direct to audit, meeting departmental bills being issued for the exercise of proper supervision by higher officers in regard to the proper calculation of the interest drawn from Try.

And the remedy lies, in dispensing the Counter signature of a hard worked officer like the DA Comdt. A similar remedy was found to have been in the payment of Mufassil work bills.

Under the first order bills for the half yearly interest due on charitable deposits should, in the first instance, be presented by the managers of institutions to the Amildars, who should with as little delay as possible, submit the same to the Deputy Commissioner with a report on the condition of the institutions in question for the countersignature of the Deputy Commissioner. The bills are then to be forwarded to the Comptroller for audit and return to the Amildars for payment to the parties concerned. In the interest of prompt payment the Comptroller was further instructed in a subsequent order that the personal signature of the Deputy Commissioner should not be insisted upon and that the countersignature of an Assistant Commissioner acting on behalf of the Deputy Commissioner should be accepted as a sufficient authority for audit purposes.

2. In working this arrangement, however, considerable delay has resulted in a number of instances in having the bills transmitted through the various channels and have payment made in time. and a deal of inconvenience is said to have been caused to the management to carry on the benevolent intentions of the donors.
